

Seeing castles in Spain does not have to be a daydream

Dread the idea of joining a large tour group? Or 6.00a.m. wake up calls? Or rushing from city to city?

You can see castles and palaces in Spain and Portugal without that happening. For all discerning travellers with a passion for Mediterranean Europe, boutique tour operator TIKI TOURS has a luxury 21-day tour of Spain, Gibraltar and Portugal departing Australia on Saturday, October 21, 2006.

This popular Cultural Heritage Tour is in its ninth consecutive year.

The tour is designed for the mature traveller and is based on leisurely travel in the old-fashioned style.

Touring is by luxury coach taking in the mixed ingredients of culture, art, gastronomy, nature and history. The tour also offers ample free time.

You will enjoy convenient multiple night stays (three nights) in charming heritage hotels, the exquisite Spanish paradores and Portuguese pousadas, castles, palaces, convents, all four and five star, in picturesque locations.

The tour price is $A9495 p.p./twin incl. JAL return flights, two Tokyo Stopovers BB, 37 meals/wine, entrance fees and entertainment with a bi-lingual tour manager and expert guides, portage, etc.

Groups are small (approximately 20 people) and compatible. Early bookings are recommended as places are strictly limited.

TIKI TOURS is a fully-licensed travel agent (TAG1744) and a member of the Travel Compensation Fund (TCF).

Free entry in Copenhagen

Free admission now applies to Statens Museum for Kunst (The National Gallery) and The National Museum, two of Copenhagen's major museums. European art over 700 years is housed at Statens Museum for Kunst and many undertake a study of the history of Denmark at The National Museum. Other national museums included in the free-admission provision include The Museum of Danish Resistance (Liberty Museum), The Open Air Museum in Lyngby, showing characteristic farmhouses from all over the country, and the Museum of Music History.

Special exhibitions also are free. Also free to enter are David's Samling, a collection of art and furniture from Europe and the Islamic world, and the Georg Jensen Museum with works of the famous silversmith.

Serenity through the centuries is on view in Cultural Heritage Tours by Tiki Tours when visiting Spain, Gibraltar and Portugal.
